

BUNKER HILL FCCLA

Students make custom saddle pads for ponies

SPECIAL TO OUTLOOK

Bunker Hill FCCLA made and delivered custom pony-sized saddle pads to North Carolina Personal Ponies at Jake's Flat Farm.

North Carolina Personal Ponies is the state level of a national non-profit organization, Personal Ponies LTD, whose mission is to provide ponies to children with disabilities or terminal illnesses who want a pony.

Jake's Flat Farm, and North Carolina Personal Ponies, LTD., Director Liz Jaynes sponsor four Shetland ponies. They are ambassador ponies and available to children in our community.

This spring, Bunker Hill FCCLA students adopted these ponies as a service project and created beautiful custom embroidered saddle pads with each pony's name and image on the pad.

The group then went to Jake's Flat Farm with their sponsor, Janet Ward, to visit the ponies and present their saddle pads.

FCCLA stands for Family, Career and Community Leaders of America. FCCLA is integrated into the Family and Consumer Science curriculum which works to prepare students not only for FCS related careers, but successful management of their family life and active involvement with the concerns and needs of their communities.

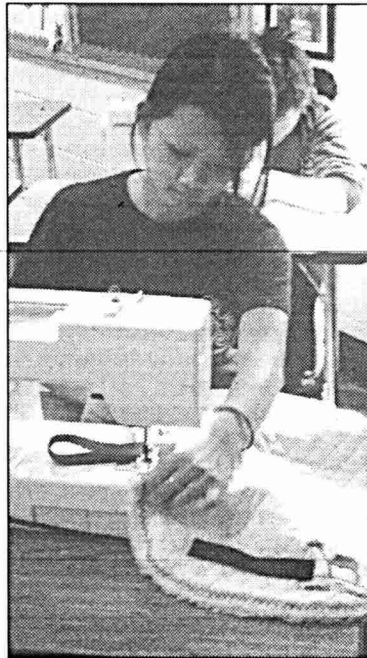

PHOTO SPECIAL TO OUTLOOK

Cassandra Lor sews a saddle pad.

The students that delivered and helped construct the blankets were Dallas Heavner, vice president, Cassandra Lor, secretary, Mitchell Cha, community service chair, and Alina Her, historian.

